Lawmakers, Council Discuss Productive Legislative Year

by Kathleen Gallagher

At the May 13 Greenbelt City Council meeting, State Senator Paul Pinsky and Delegates Anne Healey and Alonzo Washington were present to provide an overview of the recently completed 2019 General Assembly session. Delegate Tawanna Gaines was unable to attend.

Healey described the session as a very busy and eventful one. She cited the bills to raise the minimum wage, ban Styrofoam and protect the oyster sanctuaries, and she said they were just the tip of the iceberg of significant bills. Two successful bills of her own included one to require the State Highway Administration to provide technical support to municipalities for traffic-calming devices and the Senate version of her bill to undertake a Forest Conservation Technical Study to gather data to aid efforts to halt the loss of Maryland forests.

Washington stressed that it was a big year for education. He said he and Pinsky both served on the Kirwan Commission, the initial funding of which would bring $55 million back to Prince

County Council to Consider Three Police Equity Bills

by Matthew Arbach

Three bills are soon to be introduced to the Prince George's County Council that deal with the subjects of equity, transparency and accountability in policing. They concern the following: mandatory body cameras for all county police officers; noncooperation between police and Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE) in cases without a judicial warrant; and required notification and power of appeal in the shared gang database. Councilmember Deni Taveras is the lead author of these bills and has worked in close contact with the organization CASA, which supports Latino and immigrant communities in Maryland, and the Peace & Justice Coalition of Prince George's County.

Taveras recounted the incident that drove home for her the need for police body cameras. A Spanish-speaking witness to a hit and run accident was mistaken by police as the perpetrator: their interaction escalated into a beating. When a passing bystander was able to make the situation clear to the officer, the beating stopped, but only after the witness had been injured severely enough to

Thanks for Clarifying 5-G Science

I want to thank Dr. Balcer-Kubiczek for her clarification of the science with reference to risks associated with 5-G cell towers. Her mention of the World Health Organization's designation of the cancer risk of radio frequency electromagnetic radiation as a Group 2B possible human carcinogen, along with items such as coffee and pickles, puts the risk in proper perspective. We are exposed to many risks throughout our lives. I am also a research scientist in the field of risk assessment. My research focusses on preparing for and recovering from natural disasters. In emergencies, access to high quality, reliable communication systems, such as that provided by 5-G cell towers, can mean the difference between life and death. There are risks to having and to not having the cell towers. It makes sense to use the best available science to determine how best to reduce that risk.

Appreciates CARES

For the past year, I received crisis, individual and family counseling from Greenbelt CARES. I am learning how to reclaim my mind, body and spirit for my higher good. I never felt rushed or pushed to hurry through the work I was doing. I appreciate the professional, knowledgeable and genuine care I received. I am so grateful for this free service to Greenbelt residents. Remember, you don't have to hit rock bottom before you reach out for help!

Kudos to FDR

Before moving to Greenbelt, my daily dose of joy was the equivalent of one grain of uncooked rice.

Now, I am served a daily dose of joy equivalent to a large bowl of gourmet prepared grain.

Thanks from The Pantry

Hello everyone, you should be proud of all you have accomplished for the pantry. Thanks again for St. Hugh's Father Walter and thanks for a large food donation from Carole Siegel and the Mishkan Torah community. Also thanks to Vicki Fucht for S.O.M.E, Ed Putens for a large cash donation, Janet Kuhn for monthly cash donations. Thank you J Davis and Neil Williamson. Thanks to Bob Davis, our Coop manager, Barbara Hamilton for coordinating food bags and Peggy Compton with the food bag program – she picked up 200 bags in May. We applaud the Greenbelt neighborhood walk and thank Mr. Goldberg-Strassler for his organizational skills and food pantry donations. Best wishes for a good recovery to Bob Davis. Thanks to Caitlin Mc-Grath of the Old Greenbelt Theatre. Many thanks to our national treasure James Giese for his generous cash donation in memory of Jim Maffay.

Not to forget our Boy Scouts and the staff, parents and students of Greenbelt Middle School.

You are all so special. Have a great summer.

The Biggest Little Farm
The Biggest Little Farm chronicles the eight-year odyssey of husband and wife John and Molly Chester, who left their careers to create a sustainable and biodiverse farm on 200 acres outside of Los Angeles. The documentary features gorgeous cinematography, a cast of captivating animals and the message that nature is exceed-

Idealistic and naïve as they try to build one of the most diverse farms of its kind in complete coexistence with nature, the Chesters face daunting work and barren land. There are wildfires and a brutal drought and pests. Instead of giving up, they plant 10,000 orchard trees and over 200 different crops, and bring in animals of every kind. The ecosystem begins to revive, and so does their hope.

Thoughtful Discussion Democratic Club Has At MakerSpace

How is the identity of an institution defined? What exactly are the fans of a sports team rooting for: the players, who come and go over time? (Even Cal Ripken doesn't play for the Orioles anymore.) The ballparks that get replaced? (Wrigley and Fenway being the obvious exceptions). What happens when a franchise moves from one city to another: are there Dodger fans left in Brooklyn? "Be true to your school," the Beach Boys sang, but what exactly is that school? The teachers (never all the same from year to year) and students (who by the very nature of a school come and go over time)? The buildings, which get replaced and refurbished? With online learning, a school may not even have a physical presence; where does the identity of that institution reside?

The thoughtful discussion group, one of the last remnants of the MakerSpace, will try to wrap their minds around this topic on Tuesday, June 4, from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Community Center. Check the whiteboard for the room number.

The topic for the following week is decided on by the participants at the end of each week's discussion. Potential discussers who have an idea for a topic (not political or religious), but may not be interested in this week's, should come anyway to get a feel for the group and suggest a new topic.

National Trails Day At Greenbelt Park

Visit Greenbelt Park to celebrate National Trails Day on Saturday, June 1. The park does not have an entrance fee so visitors can enjoy a hike on one of four trails, ranging from 0.8 miles to 5.2 miles, throughout the day. Walk a trail and discover nature. Volunteer and participate in a trail maintenance project or remove invasive plants in the park. Meet at the Sweetgum Picnic Area near the entrance of the park. Registration runs from 8:30 to 8:45 a.m. There is an introduction and safety talk from 8:50 to 9:05 a.m.; trail projects begin at 9:10 a.m. and invasive plant removal starts at 11 a.m. Pre-registration is required for the volunteer projects. Go to eventbrite.com/e/discover-greenbeltpark-on-national-trails-day-tickets

That evening, join a campfire program about America's Main Street: U.S. Highway 1, Baltimore Avenue, Washington Boulevard - there are many names for the link between Baltimore and Washington. Connecting residential communities and commercial crossroads clustered along both sides of this historically important artery of transportation, this road has spanned three centuries of transportation, communication and community development. Meet at the Campfire Circle at 8:30 p.m. The guest speaker is Aaron Marcavitch, executive director of Maryland Milestones/ Anacostia Trails Heritage Area Inc., a heritage tourism organization based in Hyattsville.

Annual Picnic

The Eleanor & Franklin Roosevelt Democratic Club's annual picnic will take place Saturday, June 22 at 3 p.m. at Schrom Hills Park in Greenbelt East. Check the club's website page, rooseveltclub.com, to sign up to bring food or a non-alcoholic drink. Even if you're not bringing food, give club president Nicole Williams a call at 202-321-4207 so the club has a good read on how much food will be needed.

In addition to excellent food, camaraderie and good spirit, no doubt there will be political conversation and maybe even a game

The club's picnic is a great venue to restore the positive energy needed to get ready for the 2020 campaign. The organization plays an active role in state and federal elections by helping with voter registration, door knocking, working with phone banks and persistent efforts to get voters out on Election Day and to make a difference at the polls.

For more information about this event and other upcoming programs, see the club's website or Facebook page or call Nicole Williams at 202-321-4207.

Alternative Therapies: Do They Work?

Interested in learning about the benefits experienced by people who practice some of the socalled alternative therapies? How about laughter yoga, the benefits of essential oils, or even the art of being an animal whisperer? If so, come to Room 201 in the Community Center on Saturday, June 1 at 1 p.m. That is when the Greenbelt City Council-sponsored Senior Citizens' Advisory Committee will once again be hosting its annual Not for Seniors Only event. Local consultants will be on hand to describe to attendees the methods of practicing each alternative therapy, as well as the benefits they can provide. Time will be allowed for questions from the audience at the end of the meeting.

JackandtheBeanstalk At the New Deal Café

Greenbelt residents and founders of Beech Tree Puppets, Ole and Ingrid Hass, will premiere their new show, Jack and the Beanstalk, on Saturday, June 1 at 11 a.m. at the New Deal Café.

Enjoy this classic English folktale, brought to life with beautifully hand-crafted puppets and sets, along with heart-warming music.

This show for all ages will run about 40 minutes. A donation is suggested per person.

Star Party Saturday

The Astronomical Society of Greenbelt will host a star party, free and open to the public, on Saturday, June 1 at the City Observatory located at Northway Fields. Attendees can expect to see galaxies currently high in the sky (such as the Whirlpool Galaxy and the Cigar Galaxy) through the observatory telescope and astronomical camera. As always, visitors are welcome to set up their telescopes on the hill.

Observing will begin around 9:30 p.m. and continue for two hours. Attendees are asked to park in the ballfield lot, not up on the hill, unless bringing a telescope. The star party will be canceled without notice if it is hopelessly cloudy.

Crazy Quilt Music Festival

The New Deal Café will host the Crazy Quilt Music Festival on Saturday, June 8 from noon to 11:30 p.m. Each year, the NDC celebrates its year-around diversity of people and music with this completely free, nonticketed event on the plaza right outside the café. The schedule for the festival is: noon - The Music Workshop for Special Needs Adults; 1 p.m. - Katy Gaughan Open Drum Circle; 2 p.m. -Georgie Jessup & the Philosopher Dogs (Justice Rock and Roll); 3 p.m. - Casanovela (Sad Bastard Pop); 4 p.m. - Moose Jaw (Working Class Bluegrass); 5 p.m. - Super Duper Club (SuperPunk); 6 p.m. - Honey (Indie Rock the Patriarchy); 7 p.m. – The Bachelor & the Bad Actress (Anarchist Honky Tonk).

GCC Celebrates CROP Hunger Walk

On Sunday, June 2, Tage on Steel Band will perform at the Greenbelt Community Church, United Church of Christ (GCC) from 4 to 5 p.m. Tage was established in 2004 and performs gospel music on steel pan. Tage performed during the CROP Hunger Walk on May 5.

CROP is part of a Church World Service project that began as a way for farmers to send food assistance to Europe and Asia 50 years ago. In the 1960s, local churches started a CROP Walk where walkers collected sponsors to raise additional funds. Currently half of the funds raised are kept in the community for local hunger projects and half will be distributed internationally.

GCC has long supported CROP, under the leadership of Marty Folk, and has often been among the top performing churches in the area. GCC will celebrate its participation in CROP at this musical event at the church, 1 Hillside Road, on June 2 from 4 to 5 p.m. There will be a freewill offering for CROP.

Grow Old, a film about World War I.

Greenbelt residents Raynaldo Romero, US Army Vietnam veteran of the 121st Assault Helicopter Squadron Stephen D'Esposito and Richard Perry shared similar thoughts about the meaning of Memorial Day: The soldiers honored on Memorial Day contributed to the freedom Americans enjoy every day.

Mayor Emmett Jordan presented a proclamation to representatives of the American Legion, Sons of the American Legion and American Legion Auxiliary. The proclamation "expressed deep gratitude to the women and men who have given their lives in the service of the United States of America." Jordan asked listeners "to remember, not just this day but every day, the ultimate sacrifice they made so that we may enjoy peace, prosperity, and the freedoms we all cherish."

The day's signature event was laying of wreaths at the War Memorial. Police Major Tom Kemp and Legonnaires placed wreaths honoring the 14 World War II, one Korea and two Vietnam soldiers from Greenbelt who died serving their country.

"The citizens of Greenbelt erected a memorial to the 14 men of this community who made the supreme sacrifice while serving in the armed forces of our country in World War II," said Gigliotti. "In 1984, Greenbelt Unit 136 of the American Legion Auxiliary erected a second memorial to honor those who gave their lives in Vietnam and Korea. We owe all of those soldiers a debt of gratitude." Following the wreath laying, the American Legion Honor Guard fired a salute volley that was followed by taps.

President John F. Kennedy said in an October 1963 speech: "A nation reveals itself not only by the men it produces, but also by the men it honors, the men it remembers." Gigliotti said that holds true today for the men and women veterans who have defended America.

"It has been said many times but on Memorial Day of all days, it bears repeating – Freedom is not free," he said. "From the American Revolution to our current operations against terrorism, one million American men and women have made the supreme sacrifice while serving in wars and conflicts. We honor all of them, not just those with the highest medals or the heroes who fought in the most famous battles. They all died so we can continue to cherish the things that we love: freedom, country and family ... It's only possible because our fallen heroes have paid its high price."

The American Legion chorus sings God Bless America.

They were in agreement that it was important to honor those who sacrificed their lives to keep us free.

GAP Celebrates Springtime And a Successful First Year

by Cathie Meetre

On Friday, April 26, volunteers of the Greenbelt Archive Project (GAP) gathered to celebrate the successful completion of the first year of the project. Dedicated to preserving the treasure trove of history contained in the News Review and its predecessor, the Greenbelt Cooperator, the project was launched in early May 2018 with a silent auction to raise funds. The auction, held as part of an event acclaiming Mary Lou Williamson's elevation from editor to editor emerita, was a success – raising over double the most starry-eyed of predictions. Williamson now also serves as GAP's president.

The late afternoon celebration was held at Williamson's home on Lakeside Drive. A tornado watch and severe thunderstorm warnings moved the garden party indoors but the eerie light seemed to enhance the delightful view over the garden from the screened-in porch where everyone gathered. A fine variety of dishes demonstrated that these volunteers not only archive with diligence, but cook with flair. It was a warm and pleasant gathering of a group of people whose variety of skills and backgrounds contributed to a common cause.

The project continues to move forward on schedule. With the strong and welcome support of the City of Greenbelt, which provided a workroom near the News Review's office in the Community Center, the effort quickly got into gear and work began on the papers in September 2018, as soon as the space became available. With its 501(c)(3) status, the fledgling organization was able to acquire suitable hardware and software products at a reasonable cost. During the summer of 2018, as it prepared to begin the work, GAP also built its relationship with the University of Maryland (UMD) Libraries Digital Conversion and Media Reformatting group.

A grant to UMD from the National Endowment for the Humanities supports the third-party digitization of Greenbelt papers from 1943 to 1963 for the Library of Congress' Chronicling America collection, which already hosts digital versions of the Greenbelt Cooperator from its start in 1937 through 1942 (see chroniclingamerica.loc.gov/lccn/ sn89061521/). A 2018 Greenbelt Community Foundation grant to GAP has helped to support a UMD student to scan papers from 1964 through 2001 and process the digital files. News Reviews from 2002 forward were created electronically and do not need to be scanned.

The first step, now completed, was to select the best copy of all the newspapers from 1943 through 2001. UMD digital librarians Robin Pike and Rebecca Wack with Anne Marigza, a GAP volunteer and conservator at the U.S. Holocaust Memorial Museum, trained volunteers in the correct methods for handling fragile papers and identifying which paper from each issue should be selected for scanning. The work required care and patience. As volunteer Allyn Hill noted, he and his wife Frances, also a volunteer, had joked, "Who knew that you would use a piece of card to turn the page of a newspaper rather than touching it."

Volunteers from many walks of life have been involved. Retired former city manager Mike McLaughlin has pitched in and worked through papers that tell the story of the city he served for many years. Federal ornithologist emerita Deanna Dawson organizes and integrates the efforts of others and manages the relationship and information flows with UMD, as well as diligently working through the newspaper issues. Working with UMD Master of Library and Information Science student and digital technician Cecilia Franck, Dawson and volunteer Yu-Hsiu Wang, a librarian at UMD University College, are now doing quality control checks on the newly digitized papers. A special thanks is due Tim Uber who built a sturdy, smooth platform to support the papers being scanned so they can be transferred to the scanner and manipulated without damage.

The roster of volunteers also includes GAP board members Sandy Lange, Mary Sies, JoEllen Sarff, Peggy Higgins and Cathie Meetre, as well as community volunteers Kevin Fisher, Pragati Godbole, Elisabeth Kevorkian, Joe Miko, Elaine Nakash, Sandy Rodgers and Lynne Slater. A warm thank you goes to them all.

As GAP moves into its second year, it is the recipient of a grant jointly funded by the two at-large members of the Prince George's County Council, Mel Franklin and Calvin Hawkins. This grant, spread over this year and next, should provide the majority of the funding needed to complete the project.

The first six years of digitized newspapers (1964 to 1969) have been uploaded to the Internet Archive (see archive.org/ details/@greenbelt_news_review) and these become the starting point for an officially designated "Collection" that will eventually hold all the papers. As time goes on, the microfilmbased pdfs for papers from 1937 through 2000, currently on the News Review Archives website (greenbeltnewsreview.com/ archives/), will also be systematically replaced by the better-quality scans being produced by GAP.

The project's target completion date is September 2020. Visit the GAP website at GreenbeltArchive.org to view progress updates and information about the project and the paper or to make a donation. Questions or comments can be submitted via the website or to newsreview. archive@gmail.com.

Save a Life, Learn How at the Legion

Free training in a variety of lifesaving techniques will be conducted in conjunction with the Greenbelt Volunteer Fire Department at Greenbelt American Legion Post 136's Hofberg Hall on Thursday, May 30 from 6:30

Apply Cardiopulmonary Resuscitation (CPR). CPR is an emergency procedure that combines chest compressions, often with artificial ventilation, in an effort to manually preserve intact brain function until further measures are taken to restore spontaneous blood circulation and breathing in a person who is in cardiac arrest.

Operate the Automated External Defibrillator (AED). This portable electronic device automatically diagnoses the lifethreatening cardiac arrhythmias of ventricular fibrillation and pulseless ventricular tachycardia and is able to treat them through defibrillation, the application of electricity that stops the arrhythmia, allowing the heart to reestablish an effective rhythm.

Stop the Bleed. This training equips bystanders to help in a bleeding emergency before professional help arrives.

Long-time Greenbelt Resident Retires from College Park Position

by Melissa Sites

Peggy Higgins, a longtime Greenbelt resident, is retiring from her position as director of College Park Youth, Family and Senior Services after 29 successful, ground-breaking years as the head of her department. Mayor Patrick Wojahn and the College Park City Council issued a proclamation in her honor. At her retirement party, hosted by the Maryland Association of Youth Service Bureaus, she was celebrated by dozens of guests, including Maryland Delegate Tawanna Gaines and County Councilmember Dannielle Glaros, who also presented Higgins with an honorary proclamation.

During her career, Higgins made sure that College Park children and families received the highest standard of care in counseling and mentored counselors who sought internships in her department. She served on the Prince George's County School Board from 2010 to 2014. Higgins retires after 45 years in social work, having earned master's degrees from both Catholic University and the University of Maryland.

Higgins is also a volunteer at the News Review and a member of the board of the Greenbelt Archive Project.

Greenbelt Park to Renovate Campground Starting July

by Eugene Jesse Nash

The campground at Greenbelt Park will close for nine months starting on July 14, but the rest of the park will remain open. Matthew Carroll, park superintendent, made the announcement to the Greenbelt City Council during the May 13 meeting.

Carroll said the National Park Service will use the time to repair park buildings, repave roads and revitalize one of its premiere creeks with natural water.

Carroll was somber about having to close the camping season so early for the renovations, but also happy to note that the project will better the park "not just for now, but in the long term for the decades to come.'

Reservations for the campground are still available through July 14.

Nash is a University of Maryland journalism student and summer intern with the News Review.

Smoke Bombs Deployed: AP Exams at ERHS Disrupted

by Jamie Voytsekhovska

Senior pranks are a timeless coming of age ritual for graduating high school students during their final days. The senior class at Eleanor Roosevelt High School finds new and creative ways every year to trick classmates and the administration, but this year, the pranks, some instigated by non-seniors, got a bit out of hand. The week ended in smoke after students set off smoke bombs during Advanced Placement (AP) testing on Friday,

Around 1:20 p.m., the fire alarms detected smoke. Since nobody saw or reported a fire, staff assumed the alarm to be a mistake and they told students to stay inside the building.

A few minutes later, they were told to evacuate the building. Some of the students were in the middle of taking their AP Latin and AP Computer Science tests. The AP Latin students were almost done with the test, but their scores were voided and they had to completely restart the tests. The AP Computer Science students were halfway through testing, but their scores were also voided and they had to restart as

This disruption in testing has students extremely disgruntled, as at least the retake for the Computer Science test was widely reported as much more difficult than the original test.

But it isn't just the AP students who were affected: many students reported feeling scared and panicked, worrying it was an attack on their school. One student commented, "I'm just glad it wasn't something worse. I was really worried."

While nobody was injured during the smoke bomb incident, the Greenbelt Police advises students to think about how their actions affect others. There is an ongoing investigation by the Prince George's County Fire Investigations Division about the smoke bombs, according to Officer George Mathews of the Greenbelt Police Department.

Jamie Voytsekhovska is an Eleanor Roosevelt High School student reporting for the Greenbelt News Review.

are truly spectacular and amazing young people ..."

This year's winner is an outstanding student who has been on the honor roll throughout her ERHS career. In addition, Heintzelman has a myriad of other interests and activities, including athletics (cross-country runner, softball), theater (member of International Thespian Society), Science National Honors Society, art, music and church activities. She completed 274 hours of community service during her tenure at ERHS.

Heintzelman believes she is a good listener, offering advice to the best of her abilities when asked. She would like to pursue a career in therapy, specializing in adolescents. She sees herself helping stop teen suicides, reducing bullying incidents in schools and spreading kindness instead. As she noted, "This is important because middle and high school should not be a time to be afraid of who you are, it should be a time to discover and embrace who you are." In this respect she is following in the footsteps of her father, David Heintzelman, who served as school counselor for 17 years at ERHS. She plans to attend St Mary's College of Maryland as a freshman in the George's County Public Schools. Some of the areas to be supported are Pre-K, special education and teacher salary increases. Funding for areas of additional need include: wrap-around services at Title 1 schools, new community schools coordinator and increased staffing to address students mental and physical health at Springhill Lake Elementary.

Support is also growing for a project of special interest to Washington that would gather data to study the so-called school-to-prison pipeline, in order to better understand and find solutions for the trend of children moving out of public schools and into the juvenile and criminal justice systems.

Among other items, Washington also mentioned more than $300,000 in support for solar panels for the Co-op Supermarket and $7.8 million returned in Highway User Revenues.

Last but not least, Pinsky summarized a number of statewide bills, in addition to the minimum wage bill noted by Healey. A green energy jobs bill was supported setting a goal that 50 percent of the state's energy must be from clean sources by 2030. He emphasized the need for Maryland to join with other states in making serious moves to control climate change. Another statewide bill makes it illegal to sell cigarettes or vaping supplies to anyone under the age of 21. In addition, two bills would take effect to protect Marylanders during a federal shutdown. One would allow people who are required to work without pay to apply for unemployment, which they could not previously do. The other would prohibit utility companies from turning off electricity or gas, as well as forbidding banks from foreclosing for non-payment during a shutdown.

A statewide reading screening bill was passed to require all schools to test students by first grade for reading disabilities or other problems. Pinsky said this has not been done reliably enough for early intervention and is one factor in the schoolto-prison pipeline described by Washington.

At the county level, Pinsky said the partial passing of the Kirwan Commission recommendations this year has significant implications for future funding for the schools. The method used was to benchmark best practices in the U.S. and around the world that resulted in good outcomes, then determine what it would look like and what it would cost to implement those practices in Maryland schools. As a result they came up with five recommendations: expand Pre-K in both quality and quantity; recruit and retain high-quality educators; develop high-quality academic and career technology programs; extra support, such as tutoring and special education for those who need it; and accountability to assure results.

Pinsky said what passed this year is a down payment on the funding. The state has to balance its budget but then raise the revenues. Pinsky said it should be supported because it's worth it and it will work.

Council Presentations Center On Spring Recreation, Poppies

by Kathleen Gallagher

Presentations during the first half of the May 13 Greenbelt City Council meeting covered a variety of spring-appropriate topics. The introduction of fourthgrader Avarie Johnson, the District 9 winner of the annual If I Were Mayor contest, segued nicely into a proclamation declaring May 18 as Kids to Parks Day. Sponsored by the National Parks Trust, the event encourages families to spend time outdoors and visit America's parks and public lands. City Recreation Coordinator Frank Jones and Greenbelt Park Supervisor Matthew Carroll received the proclamation from Mayor Emmett Jordan.

The spring outdoors theme continued with the designation of May 17 as Bike-to-Work Day. Laurie Lemieux, owner of Proteus Bicycles in North College Park, and City Recreation Supervisor Anne Oudemans received the proclamation. Lemieux spoke of the plans and some of the amenities for the day. Oudemans gave a preview of city bikerelated events, including a bike rodeo behind Target to come one Saturday in June and the start-up of a women's evening night-ride to be held every other Wednesday to different parts of Greenbelt and the surrounding area.

Representatives of the American Legion Auxiliary were present for their annual distribution of poppies and shared the story of how the poppy took on its

At the Jewish Table

Mishkan Torah welcomes Phyllis Richman, long-time food critic of the Washington Post, and Todd Kliman, former food critic of Washingtonian, for an afternoon of thoughtful conversation and sampling of classic Jewish foods starting at 2 p.m. on Sunday, June 16. Although about a generation apart in age, the two James Beard Award-winning writers share the connection of having grown up in Greenbelt and attending Mishkan Torah.

Richman and Kliman will be speaking about their time in Greenbelt, the power of food in the Jewish tradition and the influence of their shared heritage on their evolutions as food writers, plus offer their perspectives on current trends in Jewish cuisine. Because food will be specially prepared for this event, reservations are required by June 9. For more information or to register, visit mishkantorah.org/the-jewishtable or call 301-474-4223.

Farmers Market Experiences Weekly Weather Extremes

by Cathie Meetre

It was the worst of times. It was the best of times.

The first Greenbelt Farmers Market (GFM) of the season went off with something of a hitch but the second made up for it and the universe is again in balance. The first market, on Sunday, May 12, had perhaps the worst weather ever seen on a Mother's Day, and was attended by about half the normal opening day crowd. Some vendors also cried uncle due to the conditions - which affected their openair cooking capabilities or their stock. Market Week Two was a different thing entirely.

Market Week One

It was cold and it was wet. Market staff shivered at their early start as they guided incoming vendors into position against the marked-out plan. A latebreaking ruling by the inspectors from the Prince George's County Department of Permits, Inspections and Enforcement (DPIE) resulted in removing all vehicles from the site after the vendors were already set up. It was a struggle but was accomplished with minimal impact to the market - only one tent had to be moved to wiggle the vehicles out from behind the already-stocked stalls. Indeed, the vendors were ultra-cooperative and the move was made in record time.

Despite the various sources of angst on Market Week One, the half of the normal crowd that came out were treated to the freshest of spring vegetables and a selection of warming curries from Roy & RT's Indonesian food stand. Bread, apples and early strawberries made up for a lot of raindrops. Fresh, crispy lettuce was to die for. Vendors had a reasonable day in terms of sales, because though attendance was down, most of those attending came loaded for bear, looking to buy and get home pronto - it wasn't the weather for outdoor socializing and the market is close and easy to shop.

Market Week Two

Fast forward a week to Sunday, May 19. Torridly hot weather, an almost 35-degree uptick from the week before, and bright sunshine welcomed a market with all its expected returning vendors plus new offerings from Hasting His Harvest, Tag Team Pizza and Real Food, Real Tasty. Attendance was almost double the week before. A mere three hours at the DPIE offices had given the market an approved update to the original site plan for the zoning inspector, and with all the vendors there, the Fire Department could complete their inspection. Only minor concerns were found and corrected. Kudos to the fire inspector for arranging a loaner fire extinguisher from one vendor to another, thereby keeping the recipient in the game. DPIE signed off on the permit and GFM is now fully compliant one of only a few markets in the county to achieve this safety milestone.

Market Master Frances Ippoliti, new for 2019, had her baptism by fire (or possibly by ice) on Week One. Led by Board Secretary Anne Marigza, Ippoliti met the vendors and was inducted into the minutiae of compliance.

The Farmers Market opened May 12.

She checked tent weights (minimum 24 lbs. per leg) and confirmed documentation (permits, insurance, etc.). She collected checks and generally made the rounds. The vendors were warm and welcoming and Ippoliti's charming, friendly but no-nonsense demeanor was a hit. Even better, and to GFM's relief, after freezing half to death on Week One she still came back for more on Week Two.

SNAP and WIC

The first two markets also saw the initiation of a county program in which GFM is participating that provides administrative support for SNAP and WIC programs. These federal food subsidies help families afford nutritious food. The market matches up to $10 in participant spending, making their benefits go further. The county's coordinator for Greenbelt, Felice Denison, pronounced herself well satisfied with progress, noting that she had received a number of inquiries and that two individuals had received benefits at the first market (second market stats are not yet in) but that there were noticeably more individuals requesting information. She expects that the coordinated advertising campaign targeted directly to local recipients will result in steadily increasing participation, and noted that in the other local markets she supports, the first markets of the season typically had zero participants. News Review readers registered for these programs are encouraged to attend the market and double the first $10 of their benefits. It's a win for the market and a win for the shopper.

Volunteers

The market doesn't run by itself and it takes about eight volunteers each week to staff it in addition to the board who work each week on overall support. GFM needs help at the booth during the market itself. It particularly needs help with set up and even more so with take down. These tasks are well suited to those who can lift 30 lbs. and who want to help the market but don't have a lot of time to spend. Regular market goers can tag this role onto their shopping trip, either before or after. It takes approximately 45 minutes to set up – between 9:15 and 10 a.m. - or about 45 minutes to pack up and store the materials, between 1:45 and 2:30 p.m. A vehicle is helpful – an SUV, hatchback or pickup truck even more so. Head to the website to offer help (greenbeltfarmersmarket.org) – it will be warmly welcomed. As a bonus, on-duty volunteers get discounts from some of the vendors.

Look for the next Greenbelt Farmer's Market – it's open 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. every Sunday except Labor Day through the Sunday before Thanksgiving. It's conveniently located next to the Roosevelt Center, close to the Aquatic Center. More produce variety is available as the growing season progresses and there's still a few weeks of asparagus and strawberries and the last of the spring lettuce before the early peaches make their debut. Time lapse photography of the market would show how the colors go from the soft greens and yellows of early spring through the vivid reds, purples and golds of summer and into the rich russets of fall. Watch out for those sour cherries – which have a short but mouthwatering season in June, with blackberries and other glowing berry treasures just around the corner.

Cathie Meetre is the treasurer of GFM.

Two Acclaimed Local Food Critics Hail from Greenbelt

by Nancy B. Solomon

The City of Greenbelt can boast not one but two acclaimed food critics: The Washington Post's Phyllis Richman and Washingtonian's Todd Kliman. The two return to Mishkan Torah, which they both attended as children, on Sunday, June 16, to speak about their similar backgrounds and careers. (See page 10.)

Phyllis Richman

Longtime residents of Greenbelt may recognize Phyllis Richman's maiden name – Chasanow. The family lived at 11-T Ridge. Her father, Abraham, worked for the U.S. Navy's Hydrographic Office for many years. Her mother, Helen, was a real-estate agent. During the McCarthy era, Richman's father was suspended without pay and charged as a security risk based on accusations by anonymous informants of associating with communist sympathizers. Chasanow appealed and the charge was eventually dismissed. The real-life saga was dramatized in the movie, Three Brave Men.

Fortunately, the red scare episode didn't inhibit young Phyllis's development. Her sweet 16 party on April 2, 1955, about six months after her father returned to his Navy position, was the first celebration to be held in Mishkan Torah's current building. She loved to cook as a teen, even though her mother didn't have time for it, and she helped out on the Greenbelt News Review while in high school. She went on to Brandeis University, married Alvin Richman in 1960 and graduated in 1961 with a major in American Studies.

No doubt inspired by the planned town of her childhood,

See FOOD CRITICS, page 12

Plaza Hardware Recognized

Greenbelt's Beltway Plaza Hardware recently received top ratings for quality of service and also for price by Consumers' Checkbook. Consumers' Checkbook, published by the Center for the Study of Services, is an independent, nonprofit consumer organization providing information to help consumers make smarter choices. Checkbook surveys consumers and evaluates the quality and prices of local service providers and products, and reports its findings online and in regional magazines.

Greenbelt Crowne Plaza Celebrates Red Nose Day

The Greenbelt Crowne Plaza celebrated Red Nose Day on Thursday, May 23. Red Nose Day is a campaign with the mission of ending child poverty by funding programs that keep children safe, healthy and educated. Through the power of entertainment, it strives to bring people together to laugh and have fun, all while raising life-changing cash for the children that need it the most. Since its debut in 2015, it has raised nearly $150 million and impacted over 16 million children in America and around the world.

The staff of the Crowne Plaza hotel participates in Red Nose Day to raise money for charity.

Little League

Sandro Granados prepares to run, having just hit a double RBI that will bring Dermot Kelly (pictured at third base) and Luis Arias home in the Greenbelt Red Juniors game against Laurel on Saturday May 25. The game was a nail-biter but finally Laurel pulled ahead to win 22 to 18.

Richman applied to Harvard University's graduate program in city and regional planning. In response, she received a letter from the institution asking her to explain how she might "combine a professional life in city planning with ... responsibilities to your husband and a possible future family." Surprised and discouraged, she didn't respond until 52 years later with an opinion piece in The Washington Post (June 6,

According to that tardy retort, Richman and her husband moved to Philadelphia, where she took on two jobs, one with the Philadelphia City Planning Commission and another with an organization serving the homeless population. She took planning classes each semester at the University of Pennsylvania until her husband's career relocated them to Indiana, where she switched to a sociology program at Purdue University.

When the family moved to Washington, D.C., in 1970, Richman worked on her master's thesis while juggling three children. She was inventive: providing lodging to undergraduates in exchange for childcare and securing freelance writing gigs to earn money while maintaining flexibility for her kids.

Richman's entry into restaurant reviews began back in Greenbelt, where she met the publisher of the Baltimore Jewish Times at a dinner party hosted by her thesis advisor. For two years, Richman commuted to Baltimore to write about its restaurant scene. Around this same time, she began freelancing for Washingtonian and The Washington Post. A column that ran from 1973 to 1976 in the Post's food section focused on the challenges of feeding children.

She began a full-time position at the Post in 1976, becoming that newspaper's first female restaurant critic. She doubled as the newspaper's food editor from 1980-87 and her nationally syndicated weekly column, Richman's Table, appeared from 1985

In addition to her reviews and columns, she has authored several books and won several awards.

Richman retired from The Washington Post in 2000. She now lives in Takoma Park with her husband, Bob Burton, a retired statistician.

Todd Kliman

Todd Kliman grew up at 58-L Crescent Road, the son of Ted Kliman, a documentary filmmaker turned artist, and Itsy Kliman, a homemaker, bookkeeper and calligrapher.

Food was an important marker for the family, as is made evident in Kliman's essay, Pork Life: An Autobiography in Seven Parts, which won the MFK Fisher Distinguished Writing Award from the James Beard Foundation in 2016. In it, he intertwines his glorious introduction to seven very specific - and mouthwatering - pork dishes with seven significant phases in his life. As one of the foods forbidden by the laws of kashrut – the dietary strictures of observant Jews - pork becomes, for Kliman, a powerful and often emotionally comforting metaphor for the ambiguities and conflicts that inevitably arise in life and for which he musters the courage to name and explore throughout his work.

A seeker of truth and justice, Kliman began writing at an early age: stringing regularly for the Prince George's Journal at 15 and the Prince George's Sentinel at 16, all while attending Eleanor Roosevelt High School. At 17, putting off going to college right away, he landed an internship at the Washington Weekly, owned by the New Republic and U.S. News & World Report, and spent three months traveling around the country, writing and reporting. At 19, he became a copy aide at The Washington Post. It was during this time that he fell hard for literature and returned to school. He graduated from the University of Maryland, then earned a master's degree in the renowned writing program at Hollins College in Roanoke, Va. He taught literature and writing for 10 years at American University and Howard University.

Todd Kliman in Paris

Having written voluminously on books, culture, media and politics, in 2001 Kliman combined his love of food with his love of writing, penning a weekly column on food culture for Washington City Paper. In 2005, that column won a James Beard Award for the country's best column on food. He became a food critic for Washingtonian later that year, a position he held until 2016.

In addition to restaurant reviews, Kliman wrote a weekly column, Otherwise, in which he dug deep into a wide range of cultural issues. The column was nominated for a James Beard Award in 2016.

Kliman has also authored several books. One, The Wild Vine, was recently optioned for film.

An active member of Mishkan Torah, Kliman lives in Hyattsville with his wife (and music teacher) Ellen and their two sons.

Dates and times are those when police were first contacted about incidents.

Robbery

May 20, 9:40 p.m., 6100 block Springhill Lane. A 17-year-old nonresident youth was arrested and charged with attempted strong arm robbery and second degree assault after he allegedly demanded money from another person and punched him several times. The youth was positively identified and arrested. He was released to a parent pending action by the Juvenile Justice System. The injured person was treated at the scene by ambulance personnel for minor injuries.

Cocaine

May 21, 12:22 p.m., 5900 block Cherrywood Lane. A 30-year-old nonresident was arrested and charged with possession of cocaine with intent to distribute by officers who responded to a report of a person acting suspiciously. He was transported to the Department of Corrections for a hearing before a district court commissioner.

Identity Theft

May 20, 4:54 p.m., 7500 block Greenbelt Road. A 54-year-old out-of-state man was arrested and charged with identity theft after he attempted to withdraw money at Capital One Bank from another person's account using that person's identity information. He was transported to the Department of Corrections for a hearing before a district court commissioner.

Theft

May 19, 4:10 p.m., 7500 block Greenbelt Road. A teenager approximately 14 to 15 years old entered Starbucks and took money from a tip jar on the counter. He then fled on foot in the company of two other youths.

Vandalism

May 15, 7 p.m., 6100 block Springhill Terrace. The sliding glass door of a residence was broken out.

Vehicle Crime

On May 19, a 17-year-old nonresident was arrested in the 6000 block Greenbelt Road for taking a vehicle without consent and other traffic-related charges by officers who responded to a report of a person acting suspiciously at Beltway Plaza. The youth was released to a parent pending action by the Juvenile Justice System.

Four vehicles were stolen. They are a 4-door black 2014 Hyundai Elantra with Md. tags 8BK7174 (7500 block Mandan Road), a 4-door black 2016 Toyota Camry with Md. tags 2CZ3972 (9200 block Edmonston Road), a 2-door blue 2016 Chevrolet Camaro with Md. tags 4BZ2679 (9300 block Edmonston Road), and a silver 2006 Jeep Liberty with Md. tags USC1238 (9300 block Edmonston Road).

One vehicle was stolen and recovered the same day, a 2015 Volkswagen Passat, taken from the 9300 block Edmonston Road and found in the 6100 block Springhill Terrace.

Four vehicles were recovered. A 2010 Ford Fusion reported stolen March 28 from the 9300 block Edmonston Road was recovered May 21 by Prince George's County police in the 600 block Cady Drive in Fort Washington. A 2016 Kia Forte reported stolen to Prince George's County police was located in the 6900 block Hanover Parkway with a burned interior, to which Prince George's County fire investigators responded. A 2018 Acura TL reported stolen to Fairfax County police was found on Kenilworth Avenue near Greenbelt Road, abandoned in the roadway with the engine running. A 2012 Nissan Maxima reported stolen to Rockville City police was recovered in the 5200 block Rock Quarry Avenue.

An attempted theft was thwarted when a man walking to his vehicle saw someone inside it. When he yelled, the person inside exited and fled in a vehicle described as a blue 4-door Mercedes S550 with Va. tags. A rear passenger window was broken out of the owner's vehicle.

This accountability bill stipulates that, in a case without incident, the camera footage would be held for a minimum of six months. In the case of a complaint, the rule would be to hold the footage no less than three years.

Another case spurred Taveras to address the relationship between police and ICE. An undocumented woman involved in an accident not her fault was immediately arrested after it was discovered that she had a noncriminal, administrative warrant. She was sent to Baltimore to await deportation. The woman has contested this through legal representation, yet many in her situation lack the resources to address the charge and can end up deported.

This equity and transparency bill would require a judicial warrant, indicating a crime, for police to work with ICE. The legislation's intention states that "immigrant and otherwise vulnerable communities can engage with county agencies, including public safety agencies, with assurance that such engagement will not be used to assist in civil immigration enforcement or federal discriminatory practice."

The third transparency in policing bill regards the operation of the shared gang database, which "contains personal, identifying information in which a person may be designated as a suspected gang member, associate, or affiliate," according to the bill. A gang is defined as "a group or association of three or more persons whose members, individually or collectively, engage in a pattern of criminal activity." This database is frequently shared by police throughout Maryland and in surrounding states.

Saint Theodore Greek Cultural Festival

St. Theodore Greek Orthodox Church, 7101 Cipriano Road, Lanham, will hold its annual cultural festival Thursday through Sunday, June 13 to 16. Hours on Thursday are 11 a.m. to 7 p.m., on Friday and Saturday from 11 a.m. to 9 p.m., and on Sunday from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m.

Festival attendees will enjoy popular Greek favorites like souvlaki, gyros and baklava. In addition, there will be specialties like loukoumades, pastitisio, frappé coffee and Greek smoothies. Enjoy live music Friday, Saturday and Sunday courtesy of the band Mortes. Youth groups from the Baltimore-Washington region will perform traditional folk dances. Check posted schedules at the event each day. This familyfriendly festival includes activities for the kids. There are vendors and the event takes place rain or shine. Admission and parking are free and open to the public. For more information see the website at sttheodores.org/about-1.

For vendor schedules, sponsor list, entertainment or to donate, check out GreenbeltFarmersMarket.org Currently, many people end up in this database without their knowledge and are added to it for often trivial reasons, such as clothing choice or Facebook photos. Taveras said one is forever on it and no one knows the criteria. It is an opaque process. The bill would require written notification of one's addition to the database and would mandate a 30-day appeal period. Being on this database can "exacerbate the charges against you and lead to deportation," said Taveras.

Greenbelt police have already adopted body cameras and non-cooperation with ICE without a judicial warrant as their policy – a sign of "forward thinking," said Taveras.

Taveras stated that "legislation is our only option" in these three matters as the county police "haven't been responsive to the inquiries." The three bills will be introduced to the county council in June after the passing of the 2020 budget. When asked what the plan is if they are not adopted, Donna Hoffmeister, a facilitator for Peace and Justice, responded, "we will keep working on it till they are passed."

Summer Season Opens with Victories for Greenbelt Babe Ruth Baseball Teams

by Ian Gleason

Greenbelt Babe Ruth is fielding three teams this season. Greenbelt Green and Greenbelt Black will play in the 13 to 15-year-old division while the Senior Babe Ruth team will be participating in the 16 to 18-yearold division.

Greenbelt Green opened their season with a 15-2 victory over Cheverly at Cosca Field in Clinton on Monday, May 20. The victory was highlighted by a complete game on the mound by Joseph Kline, who had full command of his fastball, changeup and curveball and a highlight reel double play from centerfielder Bryce Jones.

Greenbelt Black followed suit on Wednesday night, May 22, with a 16-7 victory over Marlboro that started off closer than the final score indicated. Tommy Hill pitched three strong innings with solid work behind the plate from Diego Velasquez.

Games in Greenbelt continue this Friday, May 31, with Greenbelt Black playing St. Jerome at 6:15 p.m. at Braden Field.

Following this, the Senior Babe Ruth team will open their season at 8:30 p.m. against a familiar foe, Bowie. The Senior Babe Ruth team features a strong mix of returning players including Diego Araiza, Jaden Hurwitz and Charlie Butler, as well as players moving up from the junior team including Devin Zeiders, Matthew Baravechia and Miles Pierce. Keep an eye out for signs throughout the city about game schedules and come catch a few innings of baseball.

The last team affiliated with Greenbelt Babe Ruth is the PG Raiders who offer a team for players who have graduated from the ranks of Babe Ruth baseball. The PG Raiders are in their fifth season playing in the D.C. Men's Senior Baseball League and they play their home games at Eleanor Roosevelt High School (ERHS). The team is comprised almost entirely of former ERHS and Greenbelt Babe Ruth graduates. They start their home slate this Saturday, June 1, with a doubleheader at noon and 2:30 p.m. at ERHS.

Greenbelt Black's Jackson Maul holds on a Marlboro runner on the opening night of the season for the Black team.
